GENERAL NEWS.

Gen. Miller's Speech Receives General Approbation.

ROWELL WITHDRAWS FROM THE WALKING MATCH.

Gen. Sherman Started on his Tour of Inspection of Southern and Western Military Posts.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.

NEW YORK, March 3.—The Tribune praises Miller's speech on the Chinese question, saying: Unlike many if not most of the speeches on that side of the question, Miller's was a calm and dispassionate view of the whole subject of Chinese immigration in its effect upon industry and labor, its influence upon our republican institutions, its social, political, moral and religious aspects. The senator's arguments are unusually free from the demagogism which has been so conspicuous a feature of discussion heretofore made in the press and upon the stump upon this vexed question. They make no specious appeal to passions or prejudices of any particular class, but are directed to the sober judgment of the American people. He considers the question not as merely a political one upon which voters may be influenced one way or another but as a problem of statesmanship to be thoughtfully considered and carefully and laboriously wrought out. It is satisfactory to think that a subject of so much consequence and such gravity is in a fair way of being discussed seriously, and upon its merits, instead of being made a foot-ball of by clumsy demagogues whose only interest is in using it to befog people and secure votes.

The Walking Match Contest.

NEW YORK, March 3.—Rowell, 415; Sullivan, 431; Hazael, 480; Noremac, 431; Hughes, 412; Fitzgerald, 458; Hart, 442.

LATER—Rowell has withdrawn. No time.

3 P. M.—Hazael, 503; Sullivan, 440; Noremac, 456; Hughes, 430; Fitzgerald, 479; Hart, 460.

When Hughes heard of Rowell's withdrawal he said, I have carried my point and have broken him up." And so he had indeed accomplished his end and forced the retirement of the little Englishman, who for the first time had to suffer the humiliation of being beaten, and by a man who had sacrificed his chance of winning for the purpose of pushing the champion so hard in the first part of the race that he could not possibly go through until the end. Nature could stand no more. Hughes had pushed Rowell the first day and compelled him to cover 150 miles in a little over 22 hours, and had kept the strain upon him the succeeding days, until Rowell could not possibly go much further.

Will Divide Traffic.

NEW YORK, March 2.—A joint executive committee of eastern and western railroads to-day decided that a division of traffic shall be made from the principal cities in the west, and including not only terminal lines but also connections to trunk lines; that general freight agents on each road on which traffic originates will be held strictly responsible for maintenance of the rate, and that nobody else shall have power to make rates except general freight agents. This latter clause is agreed upon in in order to concentrate the rate fixing power on some responsible officer. A joint agent to be appointed at all points where any division of traffic is made, and line or soliciting agents shall be subject to direction of joint agents, instead of being subject to each line agent. If a rebate or drawback voucher shall be paid that has the effect of giving a lower rate to one road than to its competitor, no time contracts shall be made under any circumstances, all existing time contracts be abrogated, and division of passenger traffic shall be made between western roads on the same plan as that existing on trunk lines.

Rates Advanced.

NEW YORK, March 3.—At the final meeting of the joint executive committee of railroad managers to-day, it was agreed to advance rates in the following proportion, to take effect March 13th: East-bound rates to be advanced from Chicago to New York on seventh class to 30 cents per hundred pounds, eighth class to 25 cents, ninth class to 30 cents; live hogs 30 cents and dressed hogs 40 cents per one hundred pounds from Chicago to New York in ordinary cars, and 45 cents in refrigerator cars; rates on high wines, whisky, alcohol, ale, beer, etc., in car loads, to be upon the fixed basis of 35 cents per hundred pounds from Chicago to New York; rates on base bullion, ore, silver, lead, etc., and copper residue, will be upon the fixed basis of 30 cents per hundred pounds from Chicago to New York, and from other points on an agreed per centage of business.

Crop Reports.

The Commercial Bulletin prints an interesting statement of the acreage and condition of the wheat crop sowed last fall. It has returns from nearly every county in the ten most important wheat-growing states summarizing its statistics. It says the most striking feature of these reports is the high rates of condition of winter wheat reported from all the states. Various counties report a falling off in this particular, although in a few places complaints are made of the Hessian fly, chinch bug and frost. Missouri, Kentucky and Indiana show a large increase in acreage over 1881, and Ohio, Illinois and Arkansas have made a liberal gain in some counties, partly counterbalanced, however, by loss in others. On the whole, there is an important increase in acreage of winter wheat over last year, and the condition of the crop during the last half of February was almost universally much above an average. As to the percentage of the old crop of wheat and Indian corn still remaining in farmers' hands, the proportion of wheat left in Michigan and Wisconsin is very small, in Kentucky, Indiana and Minnesota it is moderate, and in Illinois, Iowa and Missouri large. Of corn, a larger percentage of the crop remains than wheat. Minnesota, Iowa, Illinois and Ohio have each over one-third of the crop left. The remaining states also show high rates. The average portion of the wheat crop in growers' hands, according to figures, is therefore 2½ per cent., and of corn, 30.5 per cent.

A Hard Crowd.

BUFFALO, March 2.—Fort Erie on the Canadian shore opposite Black rock is overrun with a gang of thieves wanted in the states for various crimes, and people live in daily terror. The leader is Jake Wisenberger, one of the 11 jail-breakers who escaped from Rochester three weeks ago. Wisenberger and his crowd were smashing windows and raising other deviltry a few days ago when a constable charged them and shot Jake in the hip. He and another sneak thief, Sam Perry, are now in jail awaiting trial. The Fort Erie people are talking about loading the entire gang into a scow and towing them across to Buffalo and giving them into the hands of the authorities here.

Killed by her Son.

BAKER'S CORNER, Ind., March 2.—Mrs. Thomas Gillen was shot and killed by her son to-day. She had been for some time an invalid and fretful to a degree that amounted to insanity. To-day, sitting up in bed, she engaged in a heated dispute with her son, when he went to the closet procured a revolver and deliberately shot her through the throat, death ensuing within fifteen minutes. The young man is thought to be demented, as he manifested no feeling concerning the affair, but calmly expresses himself as willing to take the consequences of his act. He sent to a harness shop for a messenger to carry the news to friends of the family.

Gen. Sherman's Tour.

ST. LOUIS, March 2.—Gen. Sherman, accompanied by Gen. Hancock, Gen. Poe, Col. Morrow, Miss Sherman, Miss Poe and several friends, has passed through here over the Iron Mountain road en route for San Antonio, Tex. The party will then go to Laredo and Corpus Christi; thence back to San Antonio, and will visit all points on the line of the Southern Pacific Railway to Yuma, Cal.; from there to Yosemite and San Francisco, returning by the Southern route to Santa Fe; thence to Denver and the east. This is the largest tour of inspection made by Sherman since the war. The trip is expected to occupy ten weeks.

AUSTIN, March 2.—The Rio Grande & Pecos Railway Co., capital $500,000, will file a charter to-morrow in the office of the secretary of state. The line commences at Brownsville, thence up the valley of the Rio Grande through Fields, in Webb county, to Pecos river, a distance of 500 miles.

PITTSBURG, March 3.—Shortly before 3 o'clock this morning a fire broke out at Hartley & Bros.' tannery in the east end, and before the flames could be subdued the entire structure, together with a large amount of tan bark, was consumed. The loss will reach $30,000, on which there is 60 per cent. insurance.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, March 3.

At [illegible] the senate resumed consideration of the Chinese bill and [illegible] continued [illegible] remarks, which were interrupted by executive session to-day.

Farley having said that the Chinese, although remarkably imitative, are not inventive, Hoar interrupted him by inquiring who invented gunpowder and the mariner's compass?

Jones of Nevada promptly replied that according to the best authorities the Chinese did not invent them, but on the contrary got the ideas from people of Aryan stock who had gone to China, and he further informed Hoar that it is well-known by investigators that China has retrogressed in art and manufactures during the past 500 years, instead of advancing.

Maxey of Texas briefly advocated the bill, taking the ground that our constitution never contemplated admitting all races to our country and free admission of all men to free citizenship.

Saulsbury of Delaware also expressed himself in favor of the bill, and among other things gave the senate the benefit of his personal observations and study of the Chinese question while in San Francisco. He read testimony given before the Chinese commission, showing the similarity of Chinese labor to slave labor and the impossibility of white competition with it. He explained how thoroughly Chinese have permeated all parts of the Pacific coast and how universally they monopolize certain kinds of employment. After further remarks, in course of which he reviewed the fallacy of humanitarian argument, he showed the necessity for the prompt passage of the bill, in order to put a stop to the present rapid importation of thousands of Chinese coolies in anticipation of its passage.

Garland favored the Chinese bill and made an argument in reply to Mr. Hoar's constitutional objections to the bill, maintaining that as state legislation on the question having been declared unconstitutional congress alone was competent to settle the question by suitable legislation.

Ingalls offered several amendments to the bill. The first was to amend section one, limiting the time of prohibiting from 20 to 10 years.

Miller opposed the amendment. He thought 20 years under the circumstances not unreasonable and not too long a time to continue the prohibition. If the people of the Pacific coast found within a shorter period that prohibition should be removed then congress could act and repeal the suspension. Were the people of the Pacific coast or himself consulted in the matter he would make the prohibition.

Bayard opposed the amendment and said that those who are confronted by the danger and who feel it should instruct senators in this matter. The history of the world did not afford another illustration of such unanimity of feeling as is shown by the people of the Pacific coast on this question. He read from the Call of a recent date extracts from an address issued by trades and labor union associations of the Pacific coast in which allusion was made to language ascribed to Senator Morton in 1877, when he said the Pacific coast must become either American or Mongolian. This expression Bayard said he would adopt as his own. "You are to choose," said he, "sooner or later, and I think sooner rather than later, between our civilization and that of the Chinese," and he could not believe there would be any hesitation on the part of the senate in their choice.

Bayard continued the discussion by reciting statistics tending to show that if Chinese immigration was not checked there was great danger that in course of time the American form of government on the Pacific coast states would be changed to the Mongolian by the rapid influx of Chinese. He closed by expressing the hope that the senate would speedily pass this measure and relieve the apprehensions of the people in the whole country.

At the conclusion of Bayard's remarks Harris moved for an executive session, saying it was evident that there would be much more debate and so many amendments as to render it impossible to finish the bill this afternoon.

Jones, of Nevada, who had requested to make a speech on this subject, said he would forego speaking, and Miller insisted that a vote should be reached this afternoon and that the senate should act on the bill.

Edmunds also favored this course, but on account of the lateness of the hour the motion to go into executive session was carried by 29 against 22, and after devoting a few minutes to executive business, the senate, in accordance with a resolution adopted early in the day, adjourned until Monday.

Bill authorizing the compilation and finishing of the naval history of the war; passed.

Bill reducing the charge for license of engineers, pilots, etc., of steam vessels; passed.

Bill making Denver a port of delivery; passed.

Butler presented a long memorial from the citizens of South Carolina for national aid for education of the youth of that state; referred.

Anthony reported adversely a resolution for printing 10,000 copies of the medical and surgical history of the war of the rebellion.

Hoar reported adversely upon petitions for a congressional committee to attend the celebration of the discovery of the mouth of the Mississippi.

An order for adjournment from to-day until Monday was adopted.

House.

Gibson introduced a bill making appropriations of $6,113,000 for construction, repair, completion and preservation of certain works on the Mississippi river. Referred.

A bill passed reducing the license fees of masters, chief engineers and first class pilots of steam vessels from $10 to $1 50 and of chief mates, engineers and pilots of an inferior grade from $5 to 75 cents.

House went into committee of the whole on the private calendar.

Committee rose and the house passed some personal bills. On motion the committee on foreign affairs was accorded leave to sit during the session of the house in order to carry on its investigation on the subject of the Chili-Peru correspondence. Adjourned.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

Sexton's Objections.

LONDON, March 2.—In the house of commons this evening, Sexton, home ruler, resumed debate on Gladstone's resolution in regard to committees of the house of lords appointed to inquire into the working of the land act. Sexton criticised the administration of the land act. He stated that out of 75,000 applications to the land court only 1320 had been decided within the past three months, the result being it would take years to adjudicate the entire number. Meanwhile tenants whose cases remain undecided would be compelled to pay back rents. Sexton concluded by pointing out that provisions of the land act requiring erection of cottages, for laborers have been almost entirely neglected. Healy favored inquiry into working of the land act.

Harcourt, home secretary, will go to Windsor to-day.

An Interesting Scene.

In the commons this evening there was considerable excitement in consequence of Johnson, attorney general for Ireland, virtually admitting that a warrant was out, under the coercion act existing, against Arthur O'Connor, home rule member of the house for Queen's county. He inquired with what offense he was charged, T. M. Healey, member for Wexford borough, who believed a similar warrant existed against himself, seconded O'Connor's motion. Phillip Calan, liberal member for Louth, endeavored to exact a promise from the government not to cause the arrest of members visiting their constituents. Gladstone refused to grant such immunity, or give any further information. O'Connor finally withdrew his motion, saying he knew the warrant contained an utterly unfounded charge of treasonable practices, and he defied the government to try him in England.

Will Oppose Bradlaugh.

Opposition members of the house of commons have decided to resist any attempt on the part of Bradlaugh to take his seat. Northcote will move the same resolution previously offered by him in regard to Bradlaugh.

The woman had contrived to defraud several parties out of large sums of money.

Conkling's Confirmation Commented on Unfavorably.

A STRUGGLE IN PROSPECT OVER THE GRANT BILL.

Sargent Preparing for a Long Residence in Berlin—Lieut. Flipper Recommended for Light Punishment.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Proceedings in executive session in regard to ex-Senator Conkling's nomination were unexpectedly brief, occupying altogether only about half an hour. There were no formal speeches and nothing said against his fitness for the supreme bench, but the point was raised by Bayard and other democratic senators that the senate should not allow itself to be used simply to bestow compliments on friends of the president. Until it was known if Conkling would accept the appointment the senate should refrain from acting on the nomination. In this connection reference was made to Gov. Morgan's declining the secretaryship of the treasury after he had been confirmed for that position, and it was substantially charged that his nomination and Conkling's had also been sent to the senate merely for political effect or by way of personal compliment. In reply it was authoritatively affirmed by a republican senator that the president expected Morgan to accept the position, and that he did in fact accept the nomination when apprised of its having been sent in, although after his confirmation he found the state of his health and other reasons would not permit his serving, and that the president made the nomination of Conkling in perfect good faith without conferring with him, but in expectation that he would accept. In further response to the objection it was suggested that no person nominated for a high office could be expected to ask the president to withdraw his nomination while it was "under fire;" that in the next place the nomination was not an appointment, but less than half an appointment, until confirmed by the senate, and finally, that if Conkling's confirmation ought to be delayed to await information as to his intention in the matter, the same rule should be applied to all other nominations.

Details of the Vote.

NEW YORK, March 3.—The Tribune's Washington special has the following details of the confirmation of Conkling: The discussion and voting upon his case consumed only about twenty minutes, and was devoid of incident.

Bayard and several other democrats expressed unwillingness to vote upon it until it should be made reasonably certain that the nominee would accept the place.

Jones of Nevada, in a brief speech, said that while he could not speak as by authority in regard to the matter, he entertained a strong belief that Conkling would accept the place.

No further opposition to immediate action being made, roll call was begun. Thereupon Morrill and Hawley in turn arose and said they should vote in the negative, and gave their reasons, which were based upon the belief that Conkling lacked legal experience and did not possess a judicial temperament. Several other brief explanations of a similar character were made, but no attack was made upon Conkling's character, nor was anything said at which his friends could take offense.

The following republicans are known to have voted in the negative: Dawes, Hoar, Hawley and Morrill. The eight democrats who voted in the negative are believed to be Bayard, Call, Coke, Hampton, Johnston, Jonas, Pugh and Vance.

The following democrats voted in the affirmative: Brown, Cockrell, Harris, Jackson, Jones, of Florida, Maxey, Ransom and Voorhees. Davis, of Illinois, also voted in the affirmative. The following is a partial list of those who were paired or absent, as nearly as can be ascertained: Aldrich, Beck, Butler, Cameron, of Pennsylvania, Garland, George, Groome, Hill, of Georgia, Lamar, Logan, McPherson, Miller, of New York, Pendleton, Saulsbury, Saunders, Sherman, Vest, Walker and Williams. Conkling's friends are not jubilant over the result. It is remembered as a curious coincidence that the number of votes in the affirmative was exactly the same as that cast for Judge Matthews. In striking contrast, however, it is recalled that the nomination of Judge Robertson, for collector of the port of New York, was made without even a call of yeas and nays, and with only two votes in the negative. The result can hardly be pointed to as a vindication of Conkling, for the reason that if there has been a full vote of the senate, it is believed here would have been 25 votes in the negative. An intimate friend, both of the president and of Conkling, says he thinks the reason why the nomination was made without previous consultation with Conkling, was because the latter had written a letter recommending in the strongest terms, Clarence Seward for the place. To ask him under such circumstances would have been to suggest that he become a competitor of his own candidate and friend.

Conkling's Preference.

A friend of ex-Senator Platt says Platt told him yesterday in New York that Conkling would not accept the supreme judgeship; that he had said to Platt that he could not afford to hold that position, as he had $50,000 a month law practice, and he would have to relinquish it if he went on the bench. Besides, Conkling added, according to this authority, that he preferred to remain in active politics.

Sargent Preparing for Departure.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Ex-Senator Sargent, now minister to Germany, left Washington this morning for New York, and will thence proceed next Monday to San Francisco, having obtained the president's consent to spend the time in California required to arrange his affairs for several years' absence. He hopes to be able to sail for Europe on or before the 10th of April. His wife and daughter will accompany him. It is understood he has tendered the position of secretary of legation to his old friend David Telegenchid of San Diego, now in New York city.

Action of Committees.

WASHINGTON March 3.—The house committee on rules this morning agreed to appoint a special committee of nine representatives and seven senators to attend the two hundredth anniversary of the discovery of the mouth of the Mississippi river at New Orleans next month.

The committee on rules also had under consideration Reed's amendments to the rules, and discussion was spirited. Blackburn and Randall, democratic members of the committee, took the position that the proposed amendments would deprive the minority of the house of its rightful privileges, and tie its hands so as to make it powerless. Blackburn gave notice that the democrats will filibuster against the adoption of these amendments, and said, if a majority proposed to stand by the amendments he would advise them to summon all their absentees, as democrats would resist until dog days, and would stop all legislation rather than permit the adoption of the amendments. Further, it was agreed that Blackburn and Randall should have time to prepare a substitute and submit it to the committee, by which they would resist the adoption by all means in their power. They say the object of the majority is to render the minority comparatively powerless, and to push through election cases unseating democrats and seating republicans in their places.

A Struggle in Prospect.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—An endeavor will be made to put through the bill to admit Dakota and retire General Grant and other measures which democrats oppose. It is now expected that these amendments will come up in the house next Tuesday, and indications point to a lively struggle. There has been considerable opposition worked up in the house to the bill to retire Gen. Grant, and appearances are that democrats will unitedly oppose it. There is a good deal of talk of some republican opposition, but it is thought in some quarters that the course of democrats in taking a stand against it, as if to make it a party measure will have the effect to unite republicans in its favor. Its passage however will be strongly resisted.

American Sympathy.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Following is a copy of the telegram sent by the secretary of state to Lowell:

Lowell, Minister, London: The President and people of the United States congratulate her majesty on having been providentially protected from the assassin. Remembering the sympathy of her majesty and British people in our recent national bereavement, the feeling of indignation and thankfulness for the queen's safety, is deep and universal.
FRELINGHUYSEN.

Danenhower's Condition.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The following cable dispatch has been received from St. Petersburg:

Danenhower telegraphs his left eye is ruined and must come out. Oculists say the right eye is affected by sympathy. His health is splendid, but is forbidden to read or write. Can travel when the snow disappears. Don't worry. His right eye will be saved. HOFFMAN.

Minority Report on the Utah Case.

The minority report of the house committee of elections on the Cannon case from Utah is finished, and will be submitted to the house probably today. It maintains that Cannon was fairly elected and is qualified to hold his seat under the constitution and laws. The house report is signed by Moulton and Davis, democrats; Jones, greenbacker, and Haney and Pettibone, republicans.

Not Well Posted.

A press reporter to-night visited British Ambassador West and Secretary of State Frelinghuysen, in regard to the attempt to assassinate the queen. Neither had received any advices about the matter to the hour the reporter called.

Bankruptcy Bill Agreed On.

The bankruptcy bill has been agreed upon by the senate committee and will be reported Monday next if opportunity offers. Members of the committee are practically unanimous in favor of the bill, and it will be vigorously pressed to passage. Ingalls will have charge of the bill.

Flipper Recommended for Mercy.

It is understood the judge advocate general will in his review of Lieut. Flipper's case recommend that less serious punishment than dismissal be imposed. It is thought the president and secretary of war favor the lighter punishment.

THE ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION.

MacLean Says he had no Intention of Killing the Queen—General Expressions of Joy at her Escape.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.

LONDON, March 3.—The Times says if no more can be said for MacLean, the would-be assassin of the queen, than could be said for Guiteau, assassin of President Garfield, or Lefroy, murderer of Gold, he can as little expect to escape punishment.

U. S. Minister Lowell, has tendered to the Queen congratulations of the American nation on her escape. Telegrams expressing similar sentiments, are arriving at Windsor throughout the night.

It is officially announced the queen has passed a good night and is in no way affected by the attempt on her life. MacLean passed a restless night. He will be brought up at a special sitting of Windsor borough justices this afternoon.

An eye-witness of the shooting states that MacLean was observed fumbling in his pocket while the queen was being helped into the carriage, but the pressure of the crowd prevented him from raising his arm until the carriage was in motion. The same cause made his aim very wide. The bullet found in the station yards weighs about one-third of an ounce, and compared with others found on MacLean was found to correspond with them exactly. Before the revolver was seized the prisoner had brought another loaded chamber opposite the hammer. MacLean's antecedents show that he is eccentric and addicted to drink.

Before beginning business at the stock exchange, this morning all members sang "God Save the Queen." It appears that McLean roughly endeavored to force his way through the Eton college scholars, who were at the station, to a good position to witness the passage of the queen. The consequent hustling prevented his having an opportunity when he might have fired with worse results.

From later accounts it appears MacLean fired the shot after the carriage was in motion. The Princess Beatrice and John Brown saw him point the pistol at the carriage. He was exactly thirty paces distant when he fired. Two of the four loaded chambers of the revolver contained only blank cartridges. MacLean walked from Portsmouth to London a week ago. Upon his person was found a purse containing a penny and three farthings and a pocket book containing the following entries: "Fourth path—a novel by MacLean and Reynolds. A newspaper gives as correct an idea of the wide difference that divides the people of England as any newspaper in the world. I venture the free and outspoken principles of an unbiased thinker." MacLean was charged at the police station with shooting at the queen with intent to do bodily harm. He asked whether any one was hurt, but the police refused to give him any information. After searching the yard at the railway station for an hour this morning, the police found a small bullet embedded in the ground. It bore marks of having first struck some other object. It was right in the direction of the spot over which the queen's carriage was passing, having possibly passed over the horses' heads. The queen and Princess Beatrice walked in the castle terrace as usual, early this morning.

Congratulations of the Queen.

No bullet marks have been found on the queen's carriage. Resolutions expressing horror at the attempted assassination of the queen were passed at various meetings last night, both in London and the provinces, including a meeting of Irishmen. The Czar, Empress of Austria and Emperor William of Germany telegraphed messages of sympathy. The queen held her dinner party last night as usual. No political significance is attached in any quarter to the outrage. MacLean is 27 years old. He states he is a grocer's assistant. Doctors pronounce him sane. The revolver is a six-chambered Colt's, American make. Two chambers were found loaded and two recently discharged. Fourteen ball cartridges were found on the prisoner. MacLean says hunger actuated the crime. The cabinet sent a dispatch to Windsor expressing gratification at the failure of the attempted assassination.

Maclean's Reasons.

LONDON, March 3.—At the examination of MacLean two letters written by prisoner were read. In the first, which was written before the shooting, he said he was compelled to commit crime against the bloated aristocracy because of insufficiency of relief offered. In the second letter, written after arrest, he said his only object was to cause public alarm and get his pecuniary grievances redressed. That he did not mean to hurt the queen, but only fired at the wheels of the carriage. Public evidence at examination, which prisoner tried to shake by cross-examination, went to prove he fired straight at the carriage, and not at the wheels as he alleged.

Thanks Returned for the Queen's Safety.

Special thanksgiving services were held at Windsor to-day for the escape of the queen from the attempt on her life.

ST. JOHNS, N. B., March 3.—The house assembly adopted resolutions expressing thankfulness for the queen's escape.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 3.—The sultan sent Hobart Pasha to the British embassy to inquire the latest intelligence and convey expressions of his sympathy.

NEVADA.

Governor Kinkead's Proclamation.

RENO, March 3, 1882.

Having just arrived in the state from the east and not yet reached the capitol, there is no time to issue an official proclamation calling on the people of Nevada to express their views on the passage of the bill now before the United States senate designed to restrict the immigration of Chinese to the United States. I earnestly hope, however, that our citizens, wherever practicable, will unite with the citizens of sister states—California and Oregon—to-morrow, Saturday, March 4th, in giving full expression to their views on this subject, and urge on congress the importance of speedy and favorable action on the bill. The practical unanimity of the vote on the question at our last election justifies me in expecting a prompt and enthusiastic response to this call. (Signed) JOHN H. KINKEAD,
Governor of Nevada.

Comstock Notes.

VIRGINIA, March 3.—In Union winze on the 2500 foot level, they are down 25 feet and still in ore. At this depth a drift has been started southeast, in which direction the deposit seems strongest, and from this drift they will raise and stope out up to the 2500 foot level. The whole deposit will pay without any assorting. They are to-day putting in air pipe and clearing out the drain in the drift on the 2700 foot level of Mexican preparatory to starting an upraise in ore recently found to the south of joint Union winze.

Killed by a Fall.

John Cox, a miner working on the [illegible] foot level at Caledonia shaft, fell to the bottom, a distance of fifty feet at 11 o'clock this morning, sustaining injuries which resulted in his death about 1 o'clock this afternoon. Deceased struck his candle in the wall of the station, and in a fit of absent mindedness turned about and walked squarely into the open shaft. Cox recently came up from Sutro tunnel, and was about forty years of age. He leaves a wife and three children.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Victoria Notes.

VICTORIA, March 3.—The steamship G. W. Elder, three days from San Francisco, arrived at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Parliament to-day passed an address to her majesty congratulating her upon her recent escape from assassination.

SOUTH AMERICA.

A New President.

LONDON, March 2.—A dispatch from Montevideo says Dr. Vidal has resigned the presidency of the republic and the congress of both chambers elected Senator Santos his successor. Tranquillity continues.

"I sprained my ankle some time ago, and suffered seriously from the pain and swelling," writes Mr. George Stevens, Pontiac(?), Mass. "As a last resort I used St. Jacobs Oil. Three applications cured me entirely."

THE SOUTHERN FLOODS.

Destruction of Life and Property still Continues along the Mississippi Valley.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.

GREENVILLE, Miss., March 2.—The [illegible] of the [illegible] saw the sleeping citizens, who looked out of the houses saw the water rapidly spreading over the country. Without taking time to clothe themselves people fled for their lives. Ben Haines, keeper of the landing and two negroes were overwhelmed in the rushing water and many narrowly escaped drowning. In the vicinity of Bolivar 250 yards of the levee gave way and within a distance of six miles the levee broke in four places. In Arkansas City water covers the floor of every store and dwelling from six inches to four feet, causing great suffering. Many planters are feeding their hands and many negroes are anxiously waiting government rations. Boats are moving persons and property free where people are too poor to pay for service. The Greenville levee system and Bolivar county front is a grand wreck. The whole of Bolivar and Washington counties except a ribbon of land on the west bank of Deer creek is under water. The flood commenced to rapidly subside this evening.

The Sufferers being Supplied.

MEMPHIS, March 2.—Refugees from all points to the south and west are flocking to Memphis by hundreds. Several families from over the river came this morning and others will come to-morrow. The first installment of government rations will arrive to-night. This evening Col. Hemingway sent supplies by steamer to sufferers at Nitlitz, Riverton and Concordia, also to Quitman county via Vicksburg. The commissioners will appoint agents at eligible points within inundated districts and form depots of supplies to be served out to the needy.

At Helena, Ark., the river rose an inch and work on the levee is going ahead fast. Think it will be able to withstand the coming rise. Reports from Upper White river show great loss and suffering. Steamboats now run through streets at Indian Bay, several houses have been knocked out of place and business is generally suspended. The levee which protects the country from the mouth of the Arkansas river to Pendleton's broke yesterday, causing great destruction. At Rosendale, two miles from Riverton, the damage was very great, water being five feet in the main room of the courthouse there.

Another Levee Gone.

NEW ORLEANS, March 2.—News reaches here of terrible destruction of property by breaking a levee at Carson landing after the heavy rain and wind storm of Tuesday. A gap of 75 feet was first made by the rushing water, and a hundred yards of the levee was soon swept away.

Provisions for Arkansas City.

MEMPHIS, March 3.—Judge L. Haugrum, commissioner of the state of Arkansas, shipped ten thousand rations to sufferers at Arkansas City this morning per steamer Belle of Memphis, which steamer brought the first installment of provisions donated by the government. The river continues rising slowly here.

High Water in the Delaware.

EASTON, Pa., March 2.—The Delaware river tonight is 23 feet above low water mark, and is still rising. It has risen one foot since 4 P. M. The river is filled with lumber and broken rails. Lower floors of mills in South Easton are submerged and considerable damage done on the Lehigh and Delaware canals.

Northern New York Floods.

SARATOGA, March 3.—High water has caused much damage to the Adirondack railroad bridge. An embankment was carried away at Thurman, and above the station 400 feet of track was covered by a land slide. Near Hadley a slide covered 100 feet of track.

Vermont falls into Line.

ST. ALBANS, March 3.—Rivers in northern Vermont are much swollen by rains. Ice forced from rivers carried away telegraph poles and railroad trains are stopped.

Floods in Montreal.

Owing to constant rain yesterday and last night, melting the day's snow in elevated parts of the city, nearly all the low western section, from Bonaventure to St. Cunegonde, is inundated with water from four to ten feet deep. The only means of getting to dwellings in several streets is by rafts. The Grand Trunk railway track is three or four feet under water.

Telegraph Lines Prostrated.

CHICAGO, March 3.—Direct telegraphic communication with Kansas City was had to-day for the first time within a week. The recent rains were supplemented by sleet covering trees an inch thick. Over 2000 telegraph poles were prostrated on the Wabash road alone between here and Kansas City. Trains are running regularly.

Delayed by Water.

BORDENTOWN, N. J., March 3.—The railway track for three miles between here and Trenton is covered with water, and no trains from that way to New York.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

Mr. Dawes recently addressed the senate in support of his bill providing for entrance into and promotion in the civil service of the government by competitive examination. He called attention to the general anxiety for improvement in methods of appointment to office which he regarded as a healthy sign. It was no cause for discouragement, he said, that men differ as to the means. The more urgent the necessity the less trouble diversity of plans will give. Every presidential election is followed by perils which do not spring entirely from political methods, but are organic. The nation has outgrown its constitutional provisions for the appointments of public servants. When the government was founded it was easy enough for the president to personally direct the appointments. Now it is a very different thing. Then less than a thousand men were enough to fill all public places; now 100,000 are necessary. But in addition to this organic defect which practically confers the power of making all these appointments upon the president, there are political complications which have come to play a most important part in the making of appointments. Offices have come to be regarded as spoils, and it follows that after each election a readjustment is necessary for the purpose of paying political debts, or discharging political obligations and of rewarding personal friends. These matters engross the attention of the president upon going into office. Instead of devoting himself to the great questions of statesmanship, his time is absorbed in hearing this man's claims and that one's wrongs, in placing this man up and that man down. Upon the evils of the present system of making and seeking appointments in the civil service, Senator Dawes said:

> The very office of chief magistrate has undergone in practice such a radical change that the president of the republic created by the constitution in the beginning and the chief magistrate of to-day are two entirely different public functionaries. There has grown up such a perversion of the duties of that high office, such a prostitution of it to ends unworthy the great idea of its creation, imposing burdens so grievous to be borne, and so degrading of all the faculties and functions becoming the ruler of a great people that a change has already come in the character of the government itself which, if not corrected, will be permanent and disastrous. Thus hampered and beset, the chief magistrate of this nation wears out his term and his life in the petty services of party, and in the bestowal of the favors its ascendency commands. He gives daily audience to beggars for place and sits in judgment upon the party claims of contestants.
> The executive mansion is besieged, if not sacked, and its corridors and chambers are crowded each day with the ever-changing but never-ending throng. No chief magistrate since the evil has grown to its present proportions but has cried out for deliverance. Physical endurance even is taxed beyond its power. More than one president is believed to have lost his life from this cause. The spectacle exhibited of the chief magistrate of this great nation feeding, like a keeper his flock, the hungry, clamorous, jostling multitude which daily gathers around the dispenser of patronage is humiliating to the patriotic citizen interested alone in national progress and grandeur.
> I arraign no president, and I would say nothing to belittle the great office which represents the character, the power and the influence of this people among the nations of the earth. I speak only of patent facts—facts which I deplore. In these latter days each president steps into a current the force of which is constantly increasing. He can neither stem nor control it much less his own course, as he is buffeted and driven hither and thither by its uncertain and unmanageable force.

The necessity of good administration, said Mr. Dawes, imperatively demanded a change. Personal attention to considerations which should control executive action in the disposition of patronage and in the selection of officials is coming to be an impossibility, and political control, as the guide to such action, is coming to be fraught with demoralization and peril to the republic. The executive must be lifted out of this current or be carried away with it. The malign influence of political domination in appointments to office is widespread and reaches out from the president himself to all possible means of approach to the appointing power. It poisons the very air we breathe. No congressman in accord with the dispenser of power can wholly escape it. It is ever present. When he wakes in the morning it is at his door, and when he retires at night it haunts his chamber. It goes before him, it follows after him, and it meets him on the way. It levies contributions on all the relationships of such a congressman's life, summons kinship, and friendship, and interest to its aid, and imposes upon him a work which is never finished, and from which there is no release. There is literally no discharge from this warfare. Time is consumed, strength is exhausted, the mind absorbed, and the vital forces of the legislator, mental as well as physical, spent in the neverending struggle for place. "I speak," he said, "in the presence of those whose daily experience must certainly corroborate what I say, and must cry out with the president himself for deliverance."

Mr. Dawes then said that there is another element in the distribution of patronage not affecting those in accord with the appointing power, but which is most persistent and manifest. "It comes from the widespread belief that the public service is a charitable institution. Employment is sought of the government because it cannot be found elsewhere, and to escape want. The number of those who thus crowd the avenues to public service is constantly increasing, and is becoming daily more importunate. He called attention to Mr. Windom's statement as secretary of the treasury, that five-sixths of the applicants to office are poor and needy, seeking for the means of livelihood. No one, he said, can stop his ears to its pitiful cry or resist its importunities. And every one who walks the streets of Washington or dwells within the shadow of the government service anywhere in this land is pressed into the work of dispensing charity through the emoluments of official position. No one can criticise the motive which prompts the presence of this class of applicants for office upon the appointing power, but every one must see that to yield to that pressure is to subordinate the demands of the public service to the claims of charity, and to lose sight of the exigencies of the government and the standard of excellence in those who serve it, in the vain attempt to make it an almoner for the needy. This much, he said, is patent:

> 1. That in the growth and expansion of the nation the appointing power is taxed beyond the possibility of personal attention to the requirements of official positions increased a hundred fold in number, and many fold in the variety and responsibility of the duties to be performed.
> 2. That in the discharge of this, the highest of all executive functions, political influences and compensations have come to dominate and subordinate all other considerations, and the distribution of official spoils to be the lawful prerogative of political ascendency.
> 3. Offices have come to be sought and bestowed as so many charities, furnishing support to the needy, and not as so many trusts imposing duties to the state.

Mr. Dawes thinks that these evils may be overcome by legislation. If a law is passed requiring competitive examinations as the basis of appointment in all the departments and and the offices where there are twenty subordinates, "the mephitic breath of the office broker will no longer poison the atmosphere of the executive mansion or the department corridors, for his calling will be gone and his craft will cease to mislead."

The theater controversy still goes on at Chicago and continues to be conducted with striking ability on both sides, though in their latest letters the disputants appear to be "working over their tailings." Just so long as vicious or trifling plays will attract full houses they will be written and played, just as liquor will be sold wherever there is a demand for it.

HUMANITY FOR THE INDIAN.

Secretary Kirkwood has prepared a bill which provides for the allotment of land in severalty to Indians. The bill also provides for the sale of surrendered lands, the proceeds to be applied to farm improvement and equipment, and to the establishment and support of schools for the benefit of the Indians. It establishes a commission which shall be authorized to negotiate with the tribes in regard to the adjustment of their reservations so that the Indian occupants may hold their lands in individual ownership, and so that the lands they may choose to give up may be honestly sold and the proceeds employed for the purposes already stated. The aim of the measure is very high. It is first to induce the Indians to adopt industrial pursuits, and second to enable them, through the profits of their industry and the proceeds of the trust funds derived from sale of their surplus lands, to become self-supporting. That the Indian ever will become self-sustaining and fully civilized, we do not believe. In his veins he carries the blood of too many savage and indolent generations to at once adopt habits of industry and virtue. The bent of centuries of uncivilized life is inherent in him, and is part of his character. His nature is as distinctly Indian as his complexion. Culture may improve him, but it cannot make him a white man. The force of the English-American race is a development of ages, and it cannot be acquired in a day nor in an age. The Indian must in the end go down. But humanity prompts that he be given every possible chance, and justice demands that we provide for the race that we have robbed of its country.

MOTHER ENGLAND'S WEALTH.

The prosperity of the United States during recent years has excited the envy of the old world and vanity of the new, yet after all some of our venerable contemporaries and rivals across the water seem to be worrying along without special discomfort. According to a writer in the Contemporary Review, property has accumulated in England during the last 20 years at the rate of about $800,000,000 per annum. During the same period 1,500,000 new houses have been built, 800,000 old ones have been repaired, and the average value of houses has advanced 50 per cent. About $500,000,000 have been expended on public works, and both home and foreign investments have largely increased. The amount of money now invested abroad is more than $6,000,000,000, producing a yearly income of $320,500,000. The aggregate annual income of the nation, exclusive of expenditures and accumulations, is stated at $6,235,000,000. A country that gathers in that much profit annually ought to be able to subsist. The Review writer declares that simultaneously with this accumulation of wealth there has been a decline in pauperism from four per cent. to three per cent. during the last ten years. Since 1876 the consumption of wine and beer has diminished to the extent, in value, of $100,000,000, the consumption of tea and sugar has increased, and the sum of $75,000,000 annually has been expended for churches and charity. A nation that can make such a showing as this is far from being effete, and is assuredly one by whose example we may in some respects profit, and whose friendship is worth cultivating.

Sir Henry Brand, speaker of the house of commons, in the course of a recent speech to his constituents, dwelt upon the necessities of the new rules of the house which have been submitted by Mr. Gladstone, and explained the situation very concisely as follows:

> It might not be generally known that the house of commons had no power whatever to close a debate, so that the House was actually left at the mercy of small minorities who, on various grounds might desire to obstruct the business. The will of the house of commons was expressed by its votes. Every vote involved the putting of a question from the chair, and upon such question every member might speak once and as long as he pleased, provided he spoke to the question, but by an artifice of debate commonly practiced—by moving adjournments—members actually spoke as often as they pleased upon every question, as in committee of the whole house. There was no limit to the number of times which a member might speak to each question, and at every sitting of the house the speaker put from the chair questions by the score, some more or less formally, but all of which might become the subject of debate without limit. Neither the house nor the speaker could close a debate, and as long as members rose and presented themselves to speak the debate must go on. He knew of no power whatever that could close a debate in the house of commons except the sovereign power the queen exercised when she prorogued parliament.

Spokane Falls soars. The Times says: "There is a fine chance for a difference of opinion regarding future shipments and the cities that will supply this inland country with its goods. It is fair to state that the merchants not only of Montana but also of Northern Idaho and Washington territory expect to ship most of their goods from the east, over the Northern Pacific railroad, as soon as it is completed. We will then have but little use for wholesale houses west of us. Our shipments of eastern manufactures will no longer come around by way of San Francisco and Portland. Because of its advantageous location as a distributing point, Spokane Falls will soon be to Oregon what Portland has been to Eastern Washington. Immense stocks of goods will be brought to this city without breaking bulk; and every advantage will be taken to make it convenient for Portland and Willamette valley merchants to purchase their supplies from our reliable wholesale houses."

The people of Oregon are so busily at work that the anti-Chinese bill before congress attracts no more interest than any other measure of general importance. And so last evening, when the associated press correspondent received a dispatch from San Francisco, saying "send full report of meetings throughout your state to urge adoption of Chinese bill," he was surprised. There have been no meetings, nor are any announced; but public sentiment is decidedly in favor of the bill, and the people of Oregon almost without exception would be glad to see it become a law.

Mr. Gibson of Louisiana, has evidently read the Benton and Linn county papers, and from their criticism of Mr. George, learned wisdom. He only wants $6,113,000 for improvement of the Mississippi. True, there is not the slightest prospect of his getting any considerable part of that sum, but his constituents will be pleased "all the same." Mr. George should take the lesson and next year demand $10,000,000 for Yaquina bay.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.

[SPECIAL TO THE OREGONIAN.]

WASHINGTON, March 4. Midnight.—Indications for North Pacific coast region, partly cloudy weather; light rains north of California.

CITY.

ALL PLEAD NOT GUILTY.—Carrie Bradley, Pete Sullivan and John Mahone, as previously ordered, were yesterday arraigned in the state circuit court. Mr. C. A. Ball one of the counsel addressed the court stating that the defense for Bradley had filed a motion to quash the indictment against her, on the grounds that they had reason to believe that witnesses had testified before the grand jury whose names are not endorsed on the indictment. This was however denied by the court immediately after being submitted. When the prisoners were called upon to stand and plead they answered "not guilty." Quite a long discussion took place between the counsels for the defense and prosecuting attorney as to the right or wrong in delaying the trial, after which Judge Stott addressed the attorneys. He said that it would be utterly impossible to try the case within the coming week; that enough business was to be done to occupy the entire time, but if he could get some one to act in his place at Oregon City he would call a special term for the trial of this case. The prisoners were returned to confinement.

THE KALAMA BRANCH.—The Northern Pacific link between Portland and Kalama was permanently located this week, and will run as follows: On the Washington territory side at a point a short distance below the Kalama river, crossing the Columbia river at Coffin rock; thence close to the foot hills back of the sloughs for two miles; thence nearly south on the line between townships five and six, about two miles west of the Columbia river; thence close to the river for three miles; thence southeasterly, crossing the line between townships three and four about one mile west of the river to the head of Willamette slough, passing through Columbia City and one mile west of St. Helens. From the head of Willamette slough it will run close to the foot hills until opposite the center of Swan island, and from there to the city will follow close to the river bank. The city proper will be entered near Weidler's saw mill, and the track come down Front street, ending at G, the present terminus of the Western Oregon road. Right of way through Front street will be asked of the city council at the next meeting.

VISITING MINISTER.—Rev. T. H. Hill, D. D., [illegible] minister of the Presbyterian church of [illegible], arrived by the steamer Columbia with his wife, whose health is impaired, and will remain in Oregon several weeks. He was formerly in charge of the leading church of Kansas City, and is one of the ablest ministers of that denomination in his state. Ward; treasurer, [illegible] Cooke. Capt. W. A. Hart presided over the meeting.

BUTLER FINED.—J. P. Butler was on trial in Justice Petrain's court yesterday, to answer to a charge [illegible] by bailee. By some law, deemed best [illegible] the defense, the amount in question was [illegible] to come under this charge, so a complaint [illegible] charging him with misdemeanor only. [illegible] was found guilty of this charge and fined $50, which was paid.

BRANCH TELEGRAPH OFFICE.—To accommodate its up-town patrons the Western Union Telegraph Co. have established a branch office at the corner of Washington and First streets, at the office of Oldenheim, Harvey & Co. The branch office will be put in direct communication with the main office, and all messages left there will have prompt dispatch.

Deady, president; Henry Failing, vice president; Philip G. Schuyler, treasurer; S. W. Fechheimer, corresponding secretary; Henry Ozer, recording secretary.

MORE LIGHT.—At its last meeting, the city council voted money for lamp-posts and lamps on the following corners: Fifth and Madison, Fifth and Hall, Seventh and Hall, Second and Sherman, Twelfth and Clay, Sixth and Harrison, Second and Grant, Fourteenth and G and East Park and B streets.

EXAMINATION POSTPONED.—J. P. Kennard, who is charged with robbing the safe belonging to George [illegible]eid, at the Caledonia saloon, was yesterday arraigned in Justice Bushwiler's court for examination, but upon motion of his counsel had it postponed until to-day at 2 o'clock.

HENRY PRANG KILLED

THE DEED PROMPTED BY JEALOUSY.

Murray Shot Through the Lung, and Likely to Die. She Claims that Prang Shot her. Particulars of the Crime.

Yesterday evening, about half-past five o'clock, Annie Murray, [illegible] the northeast corner of Fourth and Taylor streets, shot and killed Henry Prang, the well-known [illegible] saloon, over the Arcade saloon [illegible] Yamhill street, between First and Second. A few moments before the [illegible] Prang was seen walking very hurriedly up First street, with Murray [illegible] walking very fast, about two blocks behind him. He went up stairs to his room, where Murray followed. Soon after shots were heard by [illegible] rushed to the street and beckoned to Officers Mott and Wing, who were stationed on the corner of Second and Yamhill, telling them to hurry up stairs. They found the door partially open and the room filled with powder smoke, all in semi-darkness. Murray was lying face upward on the bed, which stood east and west, with her feet hanging over the side. Mott asked what was the trouble and she said:

"I SHOT MY HENRY,

And myself." Mott then asked where Henry was, and she said, "There! there!" pointing to the floor, "can't you see him?" Prang was found reclining on the floor parallel with the bed, his head resting against the wall and the feet at the head of the bed. Mott turned him around as he lay on the floor, placing him with his head toward the foot of the bed. After having been moved Prang stretched out his arm, gasped twice, when blood began to ooze from his mouth and nostrils, and expired. Upon being asked where the revolver was, Murray said, "Here it is; I bought it." After moving her into the room adjoining, it was found on the bed where she had been lying. She was placed on a lounge in the front room, and said:

"HE SHOT ME IN THE ARCADE

And I took the revolver away from him. When I came in he said, 'Annie, you've got a revolver and you're going to shoot me, ain't you?' I said 'Yes.' He took the revolver from me and shot me in the breast. I said, 'Henry, you've killed me,' and he said, 'Annie, I guess I have.' He kind of dropped the revolver and I picked it up and shot him twice." She spoke very fast and excitedly and bewailed the affair in bitter words. Dr. Saylor was called and made a hasty examination, after which Murray was taken to St. Vincent's hospital.

The fatal bullet struck Prang a little to the left of the breast bone and probably passed through the lung and touched the heart in its course. The revolver was a 38 calibre, five-barreled Smith & Wesson and seemed to be perfectly new. It had three empty shells, but no trace of the third bullet could be found. Prang had no weapon on his person. In the pocket of Murray's cloak was found an extra round of cartridges.

THE MOTIVE.

Prang has been living with Murray about seven years, and made his home during that time at her house. About six weeks ago he paid some attention to Ethel Earle, an actress, the reputed wife of Geo. C. France, who, with her husband, was playing sensational dramas at the Elite theater. This aroused Murray's jealousy, and she did not lose an opportunity to upbraid him in the presence of his friends for what she considered unfaithfulness. Often late at night she would come to the saloon and create dramatic scenes with protestations of her fidelity to him, coupled with tears, threats and oaths. Nearly two weeks ago Prang rented lodgings over the Arion saloon, and seldom visited Murray's house. About 1 o'clock on the morning of February 24th she came to the saloon very much intoxicated and, according to her own statement, was rudely thrust out by Prang. She was arrested (for the first time in her life) by Captain Belcher and locked up in the city jail. Half an hour afterwards Prang appeared and gave bonds for her release. They then went home in a carriage. She visited the saloon Thursday about midnight and said to Prang that she would never again bother him if he would return to the house with her that night. He promised to come in an hour or two, but failed to make his words good. Within the past ten days she made several public threats that she would kill him.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE DEED.

Yesterday afternoon she visited the new lodgings of Prang, and, it is alleged, found there some garments belonging to Ethel Earle. These she carried to their owner at the Elite. She then went out and secured a revolver; whether by purchase or not, could not be ascertained. Accompanied by two of her girls, she went into the rear room of Joe Taylor's saloon, corner Front and Alder, and called for drinks. She asked Taylor to load the revolver and teach her to use it, at the same time proffering a box of cartridges. Taylor made an attempt to snatch the weapon, but was not successful. He secured and kept the cartridges. She repeated her threats against Prang's life, and Taylor tried to dissuade her from the murderous act. She then went into Blumenthal's trunk store, a few doors above, and asked J. Harvey Dillabough, a clerk, to load the revolver. It is stated that the young man did as requested, but afterwards withdrew the loads and returned the weapon empty.

THE VICTIM WARNED.

Not less than ten persons warned Prang during the day of Murray's threats and advised him to keep out of her way. He was a witness in the case of the State against J. P. Butler, charged with larceny, in Justice Petrain's court and concluded his testimony about five o'clock. As he stepped out, Detective Joe Day repeated the warning and said, "Henry, you'd better let me go along with you." Prang answered, "Never mind, Joe, I'm much obliged. She won't do anything," and went to his saloon. Here he was again warned by several friends, but paid no heed to them and started for his room. He passed the Holton house walking south at a rapid pace and in less than two minutes Murray was seen to go in the same direction almost at a run.

THE EXCITEMENT.

It did not seem more than five minutes before the news came down street to the crowd which usually gathers on First between Morrison and Washington streets before dinner hour, that Henry Prang had been killed. A hundred men or more had seen him within half an hour and the report at first was generally discredited. The news spread like wildfire and in a very short time a crowd of probably five hundred men assembled on Yamhill street between First and Second eager to know whether the report was true and all particulars concerning the murder. Prang had a large number of friends and regret among them at his shocking death was keen.

The remains were taken in charge by Coroner Garnold and removed to the morgue where an inquest will be held, commencing at nine o'clock this morning. As soon as the authorities will permit removal the remains will be taken to the parlors of No. 1's engine house, Prang having been a member of the company. The funeral will take place probably Sunday under the company's auspices.

MURRAY'S CONDITION.

Because she showed no signs of excessive weakness or pain it was thought at first that Murray's wound was slight, that the ball had struck a rib, glanced around and passed out the back. After her removal to the hospital, she suffered intensely. Dr. Rex was called and found that the bullet had entered to the right of the right breast, ranged downward, passing between the third and fourth ribs through the lung, and coming out just above the liver on the right side. Internal hemorrage had taken place, and the probabilities of her death from the effects of the wound are far stronger than of her recovery. She thinks that she will die and expresses the wish that she may not live longer. When brought to the hospital she reiterated the statement that Prang had shot her. At nine o'clock she sent for a lawyer and made her will.

DID PRANG SHOOT HER?

The opinion prevailed that Murray deliberately followed Prang, shot him and then attempted to take her own life. Her threats and preparations certainly give ground for such belief. From the location and direction of the wound, Dr. Rex is inclined to think that she did not shoot herself. To have done so she must have cramped her arm toward her breast, turned the pistol downward and touched the trigger with her thumb—a mode of procedure, to say the least, unnatural, and not at all probable in her excited state of mind.

A WORD FROM THE LONGSHOREMEN.

PORTLAND, March 2, 1882.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

[illegible] Wm. Harrison, better known as "Wm. Austin," was brutally [illegible] longshoremen. [illegible]

Now, Mr. Editor, we hope you will give this a place in your paper and let the people of Portland know that longshoremen are not criminals, nor do they countenance any violation of the law. Many of the longshoremen are connected with the most respectable families in town and do not wish to be classed with criminals.

Hoping you will give the longshoremen justice and set them where they ought to be before the public, we remain yours,

A CARD.

PORTLAND, March 3.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The remarks under an item headed "An Explanation" in this morning's issue of THE OREGONIAN call for a response from me. Your reporter, I regret to say, is somewhat off the track. The facts are as follows: Thinking that the organization of a club of the kind it was intended to form, composed possibly of a large number of members, would no doubt be a matter of some interest to many of your readers I certainly did ask for your reporter to be present. This was attended to and he called, but most of the gentlemen present thought it was too premature to be published and might do more harm than good, but promised when everything was matured to give your paper the requisite particulars. Excusing any unintended intrusion your reporter withdrew. Now pray, what is there in that to call for either discussion or dissension? Having served as a reporter on a large daily I know that all sensible people will only commend instead of disapprove the energy of a live reporter to gather general items for the reading public. Especially might this apply to a small town like this. I certainly do not court any cheap notoriety, but when your reporter calls my manliness into question in not making it known that he was requested to call, I answer that I should judge that as he was acting in the capacity of a news gatherer for a prominent paper no apology or explanation was needed for his simply doing his duty.

Excusing myself for having taken up so much space in your valuable paper, but hoping that "fair play's" sake will call for your publishing this card, I am, yours truly,

ARTHUR E. SLOANE.

The [illegible] started [illegible] the sealing grounds off Cape Flattery on the 1st inst. She carries a crew of four white men, and at Neah bay will take on twenty-four male Indians and two female. The squaws strip the pelts off the seals after the males have captured and brought them to the schooner, thinking it above the dignity of an Indian man. The schooner will cruise about the cape taking all the pelts she can get until about the 20th of June, when she will return to Seattle for orders.

Last Saturday Edward McCarty finished putting down the pipe of a drive-well at the Vancouver house, and while pumping out the gravel discovered several grains of coarse gold. A more thorough examination discovered about fifty cents worth of gold had been pumped up with four barrels of water. As the well is 35 feet down, about 18 feet below low water mark, and less than a hundred feet from the river edge, it is not likely that this pay streak will ever be worked, but McCarty owns a gold mine all the same.

Train Wrecked.

LOS ANGELES, March 2.—The east bound freight and emigrant train that left here last night parted on the eastern slope of San Gorgonio pass, the two emigrant coaches filled with people being detached two miles east of White Water station. The detached cars caught up to the forward part of the train and went crashing over three loads of flat cars and one box car, wrecking them completely. Only one person on the emigrant was injured, and he not seriously. The west bound Atlantic express, due here at 3:15 this evening was detained by the wreck and did not arrive until 7:15. The San Francisco express waited its arrival. This is the third accident that has occurred on the eastern slope of San Gorgonio pass in the past three months, all fortunately without the loss of a single life.

ARIZONA.

Three Scouts Hung.

FORT GRANT, March 3.—The Indians Dead Shot, Dandy Jim and Skippy were hanged at five minutes past one to-day. They mounted the scaffold laughing and showing no signs of fear. They said they were happy and would soon meet their friends. They shook hands with all on the platform and after prayer by the chaplain the trap was sprung and the men died without a struggle. All the arrangements worked admirably and nothing occurred to delay the execution. On receipt of the sentence of the court-martial and the president's action thereon every precaution was taken to prevent escape, and notwithstanding the vigilance and precaution exercised, Dandy Jim succeeded in separating his shackels some three weeks ago and made a desperate attempt to escape, but was fired on by the guard and wounded in the left arm, from the effects of which he was suffering when he appeared upon the gallows. They ate sparingly this morning and did not once look in the direction of the gallows. After breakfast Dandy Jim asked how many hours he had to live and when told it caused a marked effect in his appearance. Immediately afterward they were handcuffed for the first time since their confinement and conducted back to their cells. At 12:20 a trumpet proclaimed that the hour for execution was near at hand and the troops assembled in front of their quarters under arms and marched to within about 20 yards of the gallows, where orders promulgating the sentences were read to them. During this time the prisoners were conducted to the gallows which they mounted smilingly and showed no signs of fear. The height of the platform from the ground was six feet, with a four foot drop. A trap door extended the full length of the platform. Ropes were adjusted and a man stationed behind each one to steady him. Their hands and feet were then pinioned and they were told if they had anything to say, time would be allowed them. All gave much the same answer—that it was not right to hang them. White men had given them good clothes and food, but were now going to take all away from them. They were satisfied to die, as they would meet all their friends gone before them. Dead Shot said he suffered a good deal in this world and would be soon at rest, and felt happy. The chaplain then offered up prayers for their souls, and at three minutes past one the black caps were drawn over their heads. At 1:05 the lever which supported the trap was pulled and the drop fell. There was no perceptible struggle, only with Dandy Jim, over whose body a slight tremor passed for a couple of seconds. After hanging 10 minutes physicians pronounced life extinct, and 7 minutes after the bodies were cut down and consigned to coffins. There was no excitement whatever, and the successful manner in which the affair was managed and conducted was commended by all who witnessed it. The bodies will be interred in the vicinity of this post.

IMPRACTICAL PROHIBITION.

A Temperance Anti-Prohibitionist gives his Experience.

G. S. HOSPITAL, March 1.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Noticing in your edition of this morning an article under the caption of "Prohibition in Kansas," I would say, it agrees in every item with my experience in the east. In 1866 I had the honor of holding an office in the I. O. G. T., in Milford, Mass. when a petition was presented to me to sign, urging the legislature, to provide means to strictly enforce the prohibitory law, I refused to do so for reasons that I then gave and one of which I will here repeat: "You may close every distillery in the state; you may prevent importations; you may prevent smuggling, in fact you may stop all the existing means of distilling and transporting liquors in the state, but just so long as the appetites for intoxicants exist in a man, he will find means of satisfying that appetite. Instead of the wholesale distilleries you have now, you would then turn countless cooking houses into satisfying the cravings of a lover of strong drink."

In 1872 I found myself in New Bedford, a city noted in the east for the strict enforcement of the prohibitory law. Geo. B. Richmond was five times elected mayor on a prohibitory platform. He put forth every effort, strained every nerve, to put down the traffic in alcoholic stimulants that were at his command. He was supported by as good a police force as any city of its size possessed, had abundance of means at his command, the sympathy of a large majority of the people with him, and what was the result? Each Morning Standard would have a batch of arrests for drunkenness—fined $2 and costs; three months in the alms house, etc. My business at that time took me to seven-tenths of the houses, at which I would call at least once per month, and I can safely say without fear of contradiction that on the length of Purchase street alone (one-half mile long) I could at any time get liquor or beer at seventeen different places; Water 9, Bay (now North Third) 2, William 3, Third (now South Third) 4, Maxfield 1, Middle 7 and Pearce 1. These were personally known to me. There were undoubtedly some of which I did not know, while in the Wamsutta mill tenements it is safe to say every third house made "home brewed" on the cook stove. These, Mr. Editor, are facts from a state that spends thousands of dollars annually for the suppression of the liquor traffic, and from a city where no stone is left unturned to enforce the state law.

Personally I am a friend of temperance and would go to any reasonable length to aid the workers in the cause of temperance. But in my opinion the work must begin at home in the family circle. Make home so pleasant for the son or husband, or both, that they will have no desire to go out in search of artificial pleasures or enjoyments. While I fully believe the sins of the father will descend on (or be transmitted to) the children to the third and fourth generation, I also believe our mothers have great responsibility resting on them in this matter. For if the baby is troublesome, they fly for Mrs. Winslow's soothing syrup, or kindred narcotic, to artificially tranquilize it, to stimulate it. If in its beginning it is reared on stimulants and soothing doses, is it at all strange that it should seek for them in riper years?

LEFTWING.

Leaving Bordeaux in the early morning, we traveled first almost to the Bay of Biscay, and then rode nearly south for several hours until we struck the main line of railway leading from Biarritz and Bayonne to the Mediterranean. Our path lay across the vast sandy plain of the Landes, a region famous for its arid wastes, its shepherds on stilts and its scarcity of fresh water. But within half a century the character of this district has been greatly changed. Instead of desolate heath, the most conspicuous feature of the landscape now is the resinous fir planted here in extensive forests and yielding large supplies of turpentine. The monotonous stretches of these trees, scarred and streaked in the process of collecting the sap, would remind us of the dreary railway ride across eastern North Carolina if the forest were not so dry and so plainly artificial. The trees are planted in rows with geometrical precision, and there is little or no undergrowth. Yet, far from being tedious, the ride across the reclaimed Landes is now a pleasant relief after the monotony of the highly cultivated and fertile regions where trees are looked upon as rare specimens of the vegetable kingdom, to be carefully preserved, but under due restraints lest they multiply without permission or throw too much shade.—Corr. N. Y. Tribune.

The tillers of the soil of Yolo county, California, are a quiet and industrious class, who seek little notoriety, and make no great pretensions except when they are asked to name a price for their landed possessions. This week the owner of 1773 acres refused an offer of $71,120 for the place as an entirety, placing the value at $75,000, and below which he would not sell. It is possible that the difference may yet be adjusted. The ranch is close to the foothills, and contains but little rolling land. Still, many people would think $40 an acre a fair figure for such property. The would-be purchaser is a wealthy citizen of Nevada, who wishes to make sure of a California home in the event of adversity overtaking any of his other ventures.

LONDON, March 3.—At the wool sales to-day 7530 bales were sold consisting of Port Philip and Adelaide and the market was animated at full to stiffer rates.

SHREWDNESS AND ABILITY.

Hop Bitters, so freely advertised in all the papers, secular and religious, are having a large sale, and are supplanting all other medicines. There is no denying the virtues of the Hop plant, and the proprietors of these Bitters have shown great shrewdness and ability in compounding a Bitters, whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation.—Examiner and Chronicle.

such as SPERMATORRHŒA, or SEMINAL WEAKNESS, or LOSS OF PERFECT VITALITY. Nearly two-thirds of all the Chronic Diseases spring, either directly or indirectly, from some derangement of the sexual system, and yet this subject is neglected by the majority of the Medical Profession.

I know that persons who are unfortunate enough to be afflicted by any form of sexual disease have a delicacy in calling upon the proper physician in time, from a sense of modesty and sometimes from ignorance and permit those diseases to exist until their constitutions become corrupted, their organizations broken down and the hope of future happiness blighted, until death becomes a welcome messenger to carry them out of their miserable existence.
